MEAN OLD MEASLES

"What is this? What is this? Well, this makes me too mad!"

"It Does Make Me Mad."

"What is this? What is this? Well, this makes me too mad!"

"I was speaking and his dear little face looked cross and unhappy."

"I can't help it, but it does make me mad!"

"The little girl you love so much?"

"The one with the blue eyes and the fair hair and the soft pretty skin and the gay happy voice?"

"The very one," said Peter Gnome.

"Well, Mean Old Measles is visiting Lucy. And Measles just went there on the sly, no one knows how!"

"Measles does the way all that sly family do."

"Chicken-Pox and the others are just the same way. They all have the same family ways. But, you know I think Measles just might have left Lucy alone. You know it wasn't so very long ago since those wretched Tonsil Twins were in Lucy's throat. They were done away with, I'm thankful to say. But they were mean, too, and they didn't leave easily and quietly and without a sound. They sneaked like the yanked out."

"And then along came Measles. Yes, Measles spoils everything. But did Measles care? No, Measles didn't care in the least. Measles took along that mean friend Carrie Cough and then Measles took along all the little Measles. They're such mean little creatures—nothing more nor less than mean little red spots. are they!"

"And it seems they started right in to play games right over Lucy's face and body, and they ran races and they played house. Do you know how they play house among Measles' children?"

"I've no idea," said Fairy Grant-Your-Wishes.

"They call it the game of rash instead of house, and their one idea is to take up all the room they can and spread out all they can and in some ways they have make-believe open fires and in other parts they put down rugs that makes the poor person who has the measles want to scratch these parts!"

"And the make-believe open fire-places of the Measles' children feel just like a horrid Measles fever feel. Doctors call it the fever that comes with Mean Old Measles. And all of these are visiting Lucy."

"I'll tell you what I'll do," said Fairy Grant-Your-Wishes. "I'll dash over to Fairy Wondrous Secrets. Together we'll do up a little package. When Mean Old Measles gets under way we can't get rid of her entirely right off, but we can make things a whole lot better."

"As you say, Measles is very sly. So sly that it is almost impossible to see her on her way. I have to get Fairy Wondrous Secrets to help me, for my work has never happened to be near Mean Old Measles and I don't know her ways. Fairy Wondrous Secrets does. Wait, Peter Gnome! I'll not be long."

In a few moments Fairy Grant-Your-Wishes was back, and Fairy Wondrous Secrets was with her.

"Take this little package," they said together, as they waved their wands, "and put on your invisible robe. Dash into the room where Lucy is and open this package upon her forehead. She will think it is nothing more than a small breeze of refreshing, cool air on her hot forehead."

"But it will be different. It will do its work. You shall see."

Off went Peter Gnome and after he had emptied the package upon Lucy's forehead and had heard her say, "Oh, my forehead feels cool and nice now," he waited around for a little.

It was not long after that the doctor came, and oh, how little Peter Gnome's heart did dance with joy under his invisible robe when he heard the doctor say,

"The worst of it is all over with now. She will now go along the Gettysburg Road which all who are sick so eager to travel. The change for the better has just begun."

"What would you do if you had a million dollars, Jim?"

"Oh, I suppose I'd spend most of the time comparing myself with some one who had a billion and was feeling discontented."

"Human Nature"

"That Kind"

"Tittle-What kind of a boy is Jimmy?"

"Tessie—Oh, he called and talked about the weather all evening, and when he went home he took dad's umbrella."

Heard and Seen at Advertiser Office

Dr. L. S. Edwards and wife, H. C. B. and wife, Brattleboro, Vt., are on a trip to Havana and Nassau. Funny they were Vermont in sap time to visit their own hidden islands.

We have a subscriber, Geo. S. Pollard, of the Chatham Trust Co. of Chatham, N. H., who sends us a paper containing a picture of Mr. Seitz' recent address in Norway. It is printed in another column.

Richard Pearson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pearson, brought to us a child's picture, Wednesday, after school. Young Richard said he found it near Central Ave. and guessed "somebody will be looking for it." Color is gray and white.

One Robert, who performed in the Norway, last summer for the Norway, and once for Norway, left for St. Petersburg, Fla. He was training at the Boston Braves. Robert was a side wheel pitcher and a lot of stuff on the ball.

The snow was practically gone from the hills and spots sheltered from the wind. The week of the 16th of March, snowing in clouds, sleds had been used for the summer. Now we can see nearly three feet of snow on the hills and good sledding.

This is the way Don Seitz expresses it in a letter to the writer: "I have been remiss in writing of the death of my father, but the paper embraced my life, and while I am sad to see a tear, its going has been a relief to me."

The American Fork and Hoe Co. of W. P. Tubs Co. of Norway is putting out for the use of the citizens of Norway and would suggest that the citizens use them to plant a garden. A few copies were left here by Mr. Seitz to present to customers.

At a recent call: "Yes, my father recently brought his old pipe, a Bids imported, you know. I'm sure he'll be with the whiskey, but have a cigarette lighter and would be happy if I knew of a respectable person who wanted it."

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Frost of Bangor, Me., say: "We are pleased to know that Ordway Grove is a park for the use of the citizens of Norway and would suggest that the citizens use them to plant a garden. A few copies were left here by Mr. Seitz to present to customers."

If you happen to have some old accounts, letters, papers or documents of interest, stored away in the attic, bring them in. We would like to make an article for the Advertiser from them. These bargains and documents of interest are of great value.

"Hopkins" Hopkins has lost a pair of school goggles and is having a serious time with the sun glare. Thinking a stranger might have picked them up, he sent our ad in recovering a necessity. (Only business from the cart is not sent, and he can't afford a new pair unless the goggles are gone forever.)

Mrs. Eva Kimball writes from St. Petersburg: "We are leaving here the 16th of the month, by bus as far as Washington, and by train the rest of the way. Please send my next paper, Mary, to my address in New Jersey, 713 Madison Ave., Elizabeth, N. J. Have enjoyed the winter very much here in the South."

Don Durr says: "I see by the Advertiser that some one has suggested a name for Ordway's Grove. By all means it should be called 'The Don Seitz Bird Sanctuary'. That is the most appropriate name we could have. A scarf was found some weeks ago by Mrs. Ruth Morse and brought here by Miss Ruth Morse to find the owner.

This is the season of tapping trees and the making of maple syrup—and by the way—if you need syrup labels remember that labels are printed at the Norway Advertiser office. Would like to print some for you.

An artificial anglerworm is responsible for the picture of Elmer L. Aldrich to appear in the Popular Mechanics, Popular Science and in Sketch, a magazine published in London, England. Mr. Aldrich was filmed with a group of fishermen at a Maine lake, while demonstrating the artificial bait that closely resembles the real thing and fools the trout. Inquiries from eight states and two foreign countries prove that people read and plug fish.

In speaking of the passing of the New York World, the editor of the Lewiston Journal says: "J. Otis Swift, a graduate of this office for almost forty years, was a writer for the World and at its demise on the editorial page was his native state. As a by-the-way, does not the general decline of the income of the World date from the departure of Don C. Seitz from the business management? Mr. Seitz came from Maine."

The Churchman of March 7 comments on the passing of the N. Y. World. It is fair to presume it was written by Don C. Seitz, one of the editors of the Churchman and up to about six years ago was the business manager of the World. Certainly he ought to know. Here is the comment:

"The New York World, as revived by Joseph Pulitzer and his associates in 1885, is no more. For forty years it had the most notable career of any American newspaper. That is to say, it had thirty years of real life under Mr. Pulitzer's direction, and prospered for ten more under hands that had been joined with his. Then there came a generation which knew not Joseph and which failed to develop the force needed to meet a changing condition. The World was not the victim of competition, but of inaction. It simply could not thrive under the sort of indecisive leadership. So it is that the morning and Sunday issues disappear and the evening World fades into the embrace of the evening Telegram. To say that New York had too many newspapers is hardly an excuse. Since Mr. Pulitzer died in October, 1911, the morning Sun, the Press, the Mail, the Liberal Globe and the Herald have vanished from the scene. The reflection is on the city—a community that buys each day two million vile tabloids, and lets journals of the standard named die. The motion pictures and the radio can also be accused of having a hand in the mortality. But above it all is a new shift among the people who have become impatient with anything save entertainment."

Am't Mary, up in town, gets relief in saying the following: "It is strange, but true, that if a man or woman has worked hard all their lives and accumulated property (the same) to provide for themselves the remainder of their life, someone will covet it and go to fishing to get hold of it."

Yes, it is a fact, especially if they are advanced in years and they have anyone come to live with them or care for them, or even if they hire help the cry goes up that either friend or help is fishing after the property. I have recently heard it hinted that this was the case in my affairs and I will say, here and now, that neither help or friend can influence me to dispose of my home to please anybody until I have no need of it! I earned it all myself at the wash tub (the hardest kind of work any woman can follow). It's a slow way to pay for a home. Only those who have followed that vocation can know how slow and hard it is. They alone have a right to do as they please with their property. I propose to do as I please with my home."

I hope no one will lay awake nights thinking about the little house I own. Perhaps they may decide that they are up against it and treat the old lady as they should. They might get a couple of shingles from her home, if no more. There is no strings on me."

I have a right to hire any one I please, too, or to have a house full of friends and relatives. I don't think they are all after the little house I own. Perhaps they are, but I have no need of it! I earned it all myself at the wash tub (the hardest kind of work any woman can follow). It's a slow way to pay for a home. Only those who have followed that vocation can know how slow and hard it is. Grange Hall before a good sized audience. The play was amusing and kept the audience in laughter. The ghost that caused the first excitement proved to be a sleep walker, who discovered in the cellar the hidden treasure of the Grange. Before the curtain, music was furnished by a portion of the high school orchestra. Between the first and second acts, vocal solos were given by the Misses Govenieve Trask and Violet Upton. Dancing followed. Home made candy was sold during the evening.

The young people of the church deeply appreciate the patronage given the play at the Grange Hall, Tuesday evening.

Universalist
Rev. Conrad B. Riecher will preach at 10:00 a. m. on the subject: "What Is Truth?"

At 7:30 p. m. he will present an illustrated talk on "The Enchanted Cottage". Richard Barthelmess is the star of this charming allegory, which shows how the eyes of love make us beautiful to those who love us. "No babe is home-ly to its mother, no wife to her husband, no husband to his wife—if love is there."

Sunday school at 11:10 a. m.
The Junior Y. P. C. U. will meet at 4 p. m. Mrs. Anna Kneier will be in charge.

The Senior Y. P. C. U. will hold a business meeting at 6:00 p. m., which will be followed by a devotional led by Caroline Downing. Topic: "Our Greatest Ambitions."

The Senior Y. P. C. U. will hold a Poverty Party in Concert Hall, Friday evening, March 13, at 8 o'clock, to which every one is invited to come in costume. A good time is assured and the cost of admission will depend on the costume.

Around one hundred and twenty-five enjoyed the parish supper and social gathering, Wednesday evening. Community singing was led by George Hill. The pastor spoke on the necessity of all working together for success. B. G. McIntire, chairman of the parish committee, spoke briefly of the parish and the financial requirements. ## Thoughts on Agriculture

Present Conditions and How They Have Come Into Being

By R. L. Cummings

It is Saturday night and I have not forgotten our fine Pomona meeting here on the 3rd. Fully 2000 present, as usual, the address of the speaker, Mr. Atherton, selected by our lecturer, Austin Stearns, Jr. To sum up the address in brief, it was this: We are in a bad place still going downward in the prices of farm products. We have great competition from all sorts of farm products from other sections by truck as well as by rail. It is better for us to know the depth of the water before we sink, than to be surprised when we do. To all of this I agree. I do not agree, however, with the idea that such things having happened before, they are therefore unavoidable and should be endured with patient-resistance.

No doubt Mr. Atherton was agree with me that all things within the range of human events have a cause and therefore a cure. With these conditions we are most painfully familiar, we feel, however, like the sick man that had a doctor tell him all about how he felt, that he had a fever; that people had had fevers before, and that he would be worse before he was better, and that he should be patient and endure it, and then leaves, thinking that the entertainment was what we needed instead of a remedy.

Even this left our stomachs in more normal condition than the stock remedy. Produce more fine, well graded goods to make those people out of jobs and money pay a high price for.

We do really need a doctor or at least a remedy for our serious troubles, and if as Mr. Atherton says, we are to be worse we must conclude that our doctors or teachers have been on the wrong track. We need the most to be to get out of the cause of our troubles and then find the remedy. We hope that our lecturer will be able to find someone who can point out those two very important factors.

About forty-four years ago I attended a Farmers' Institute meeting in New Gloucester, in what was then the New Town Hall. It was a fine case for a week with full house. There was a Co-operative Creamery in town and all seemed to want to know all the professors could teach them about dairying and everything else.

For more than forty years we have been preying upon; prayed for and preached to along these same lines. What is the result? I gathered cream from that factory two weeks while the regular man was attending court in Portland. Take a trip over that route today and you will see what political and financial institutions and other people have done in the line of developing agriculture. Go over the state and you will find the same evidence. From what little I have been able to see, I feel that the case of the people has been handled by the other fellow's counsel.

Every lecturer of a Pomona Grange whose sympathetic ears have been low will naturally select speakers that are on his side of the question.

Mr. Canham of the Lewiston Sun, who visits our Pomona granges in the capacity of a speaker, says the best way to get talking about these matters and just let them go. Forty years of this sort of leadership has kept Maine agriculture steadily falling behind other industries of the country.

Few of the men that are chosen as speakers seem to see any of the hundred and one things that have brought us to this deplorable condition. If they did, they, why not at least attempt to explain them and find a remedy? In my opinion the powers behind the throne do not want it done.

Just a word to our Lecturer: I wish to thank him for coming over to the support of the proposed amendment to the apple law. We had a vote of the full house, about 50 in the favor. Then he accused me of misrepresenting the case of the growers. I didn't do anything of the kind, I simply stated that two lots of apples that had been condemned as not passable as A and B grade were sold in bulk for $2c to $1.00 per barrel, both in lots eventually packed a carload and did get them passed through Boston. The car from Livermore net $740.20 the car from the I. H. Ellingwood lot net $4.55 per barrel. I did not state that these apples were marked unclassified.

I will state that I carefully examined the Ellingwood lot on the trees and loaded about 700 barrels of them in bulk and I know that they would have sorted well for A and B grade apples under either the Maine law or the Federal law. The fact that they net $4.55 per barrel is sufficient proof of that fact to any fair minded man, I think.

It is quite another matter to pass apples with an inspector with his rules of inspection, especially if he has once turned them down. Although I am creditably informed that the same inspector took a man to see that car of apples that net $746.20, after they were packed and offered $2.00 per barrel for them.

Could there be any more convincing proof that we are entitled to an amendment to this apple law that will allow us to sell our apples in the manner we sell other goods?

If you need any more proof, think of the 200,000 barrels of apples under the snow here in Maine today and the loss of value of our orchards and farms that have come from such causes.

How many more days of labor at good wages would it have made for the unemployed, and how much more earnings to the railroads and to barrel-makers, and how much more money would have passed through the channels of trade?
